Utilities:

Our clients must understand that many of the conveniences, which we accept as normal are not always as readily available in Italy. You should understand that the electrical systems in Italy function on a 220-voltage current. In Italy, each household receives an allotment of electricity. We have a permit for 2 households of normal electricity. To be sure that you do not go over the allotment, and lose power temporarily, it is wise to turn off lights or other appliances when not in need. You may experience a power outage while in Italy during a storm or other related interferences, which is fairly normal in Italy and elsewhere in the world. Also, the telephone system can also experience outages at times, which is also fairly normal in Italy and elsewhere in the world.

The water at Villa San Piero is pumped from 2 wells into a cistern and then inside the house, the outside water for the garden and pool is collected in a second cistern, all the water supply is controlled electrically. Be mindful of water usage as we take our water from our own wells and these fill slower in summer.

At the beginning of the rental week both cisterns are full and contain 20 cbm of water. In case the cisterns need to be refilled by water truck during rental week € 500.00 need to be charged for the water delivery.

The heating systems is a state-of-the-art pellet burner + heat pump, which is also started, and climate controlled electrically. For your convenience there are also wood stoves and fireplace inserts for additional heating. Please understand at time electrical outages may occur, they are totally out of our control. If you experience a problem such as this, please contact our property manager who will report it to the authorities immediately. Generally, the outages are for short periods of time. We cannot make refunds due to happenings such as these during your stay.

The swimming pool is not heated in summer, so there are no extra costs for heating included in the rental rate. There is no air conditioning installed at the house, the villa was completely restored with state-of-the-art insulation of the roof. There are outside shutters in front of the windows, which help keeping the sun out in summer. In any bedroom is a fan.
